Home Enrichment

The chef's assistant.

Have your child help you cook. While you don't want your child to use sharp knives or cook over flames, they can do plenty of things to help you get dinner on the table. Ask your child to toss the salad, find ingredients for you, set the table, etc. Children feel very grown up when they're given a job to do. To help your child see a task as fun instead of as a chore, make a game out of it. For example, challenge your child to find ingredients or set the table in less than three minutes.
