- Makes marks on paper
- Says Please and Thank You
- Begins to follow classroom behavior expectations
- Tells which is one and which is many

Home Enrichment

Young preschoolers are brimming with energy. That's a good thing in terms of physical development, because it's the repeated movement of large and small muscle groups that builds and refines how well these parts of the body work. Large motor skills develop first.

Take family walks and alternate walking, running, jogging, and marching. Play "I Spy" or start a collection of feathers or leaves as a diversion while you walk. If the weather is not good, then while indoors, lead a parade with musical instruments or flags.

Reminders & Announcements

Please remember to check your children's extra supply of clothing. Fall mornings & afternoons can be chilly so please make certain appropriate clothing and light weight sweaters and/or jackets are provided.
