NOVEMBER 2015

November Happenings

We have had such a wonderful school year thus far! As our first quarter report cards go out, I am amazed at how much our students have grown and changed already this year. We have so many wonderful opportunities upcoming that I cannot imagine how far they will come by the end of the year!

In addition to our regular academic rigor, Week of Geography will be November 9-13. We are very excited to have our classes further explore maps and geography. This is such an important skill for our students and we have several unique activities planned to help reinforce these skills for our students.

Make sure to ask your student what he or she learned during the week.

We will also focus on respect during November and December for our Character Counts program. Students will continue to earn eagle heads for exhibiting respect during these months. Eagle heads are posted on our character board for all to see throughout the entire trait.

Of course November is a time to reflect on all that we are thankful for, both at school and in our non-school lives. We will have our annual Thanksgiving feast this month. In addition, all of our classes will discuss things they are thankful for and what it means to be thankful. I am thankful for our wonderful families and students!

Preschool Focus: 4 Ways to Instill Thankfulness in Young Children

It's never too early to teach your child about thankfulness. By learning concepts of generosity and compassion, children strengthen their connection to their community and become sensitive to the feelings of others. The holiday season is quickly approaching, so now is a great time to reinforce the importance of thankfulness and giving back to those in need. Below are age appropriate activities that we implement in the classroom, as well as activities for you and your child to do at home.

TODDLERS: Be a good role model

In the classroom: Our teachers introduce "please" and "thank you" to our toddlers by using sign language and verbal communication. Students practice good manners with their dolls, stuffed animals, and each other.

At home: Modeling positive behaviors is a great way to teach your child good manners. Say "please" before asking him to do something, and always follow with "thank you."

BEGINNERS: Share your gratitude out loud

In the classroom: Our teachers encourage our Beginner students to name a few of their favorite toys and games, and bring one in from home to share with friends. By sharing their belongings, children nurture connections with their classmates, and build necessary problem-solving skills.

At home: Talk with your child about the things in your life for which you are thankful, and ask him to name a few as well. Extend the discussion beyond physical possessions. For instance, if he is thankful for a favorite toy, say "Grandma bought you that toy, and we are thankful for her."

INTERMEDIATES: Show appreciation through actions

In the classroom: By age three, children begin to understand the concept of appreciation. They create birthday cards for their teachers, make art projects for friends, and write thank you cards for classroom visitors.

At home: Go shopping with your child, and buy a small token of appreciation for a friend or family member. Ask your child to draw a picture or write a thank you note to accompany the gift.

PRE-K/PRE-K2: Give back to those in need

In the classroom: During the holidays, many of our schools host donation drives for organizations in need. Our older preschoolers discuss why they are participating, count the items donated, and sometimes have the opportunity to deliver the donations.

At home: Donate canned goods to a local food pantry, and allow your child to choose the food that he would like to donate. Explain to him that you are thankful to have good food to eat, and that you want to make sure that others have the same.

We provide many opportunities for our preschoolers to develop thankfulness and show gratitude towards others. By setting this positive foundation, your child will be more appreciative and generous as he enters elementary school and beyond.
